

Lee Bailham

Mediation experience

Lee is a qualified family law mediator, having trained with one of the most prestigious mediation training institutions. Lee is passionate about the human element inherent in family mediation, the possibilities it provides for positive dispute resolution and the opportunities it presents for a positive long term outlook in family disputes. He believes the mediation forum can resolve the most entrenched and difficult cases, where the parties can see no way forward. It is this passion and belief that sets him apart as a highly effective mediator. Lee's experience in the law, means he appreciates family discord can present a potentially life changing experience for many clients and their children, and he therefore seeks to provide a sensitive, economical and swift service where possible.

Lee's experience in family disputes ranges right across the entire spectrum of family law, although he has a particular interest in complex high value financial disputes arising from divorce, parental conflicts regarding children and disputes between cohabitants.

Professional experience

Lee was admitted as a solicitor in 1995 and has predominantly been practising family law for the past 17 years.

Prior to admission as a solicitor, Lee qualified as a Legal Executive in 1992, and overall has over 25 years experience working in the legal office, dealing with cases where the key element was resolving disputes through negotiation where possible.

Lee currently practices at a highly regarded regional law firm situated in Greater London.

Other information

Lee is a member of Resolution and the Law Society Family Law Panel.